ACTEON NORTH AMERICA Announces Apple® Integration of its Imaging Products

Mount Laurel, NJ - 8/12/2011 - ACTEON North American has announced the availability of its imaging products on the Apple® and Mac OS® platforms. Both the Sopix2 digital x-ray sensors and Sopro camera line now have native Apple® hardware drivers in addition to an Apple® specific version of Sopro Imaging to manage the image acquisition.

“This is something the market has been demanding for some time now” said Wyatt Wilson, Vice President and COO of ACTEON’s North American office. “We are pleased to be able to offer this solution to our customers and proud to be one of the first hardware companies to offer a unified solution to the Apple community for both our cameras and x-ray sensors”

The Sopro solution for Apple® includes an image management application, a camera driver and acquisition applet, and an x-ray driver and applet. Availability is immediate via the company’s website and all imaging shipments after September 1st 2011 will include both Apple and Windows software. ACTEON products are available through all broad line dental dealers. Product pricing was not available at the time of this press release but as with all ACTEON products, installation and support is available at no charge through ACTEON’s North American call center.
